

Safety warning for Suzuki Fronx owners

NZTA is urging the owners of Suzuki Fronx vehicles in New Zealand to stop carrying passengers in the rear seats of the vehicles. This follows the failure of a safety belt in a laboratory crash test carried out by the Australasian New Car Assessment Programme (ANCAP).

Safety warning for Suzuki Fronx \(NZTA media release\)

Suzuki NZ has stopped sales of the Suzuki Fronx in New Zealand and is urgently contacting vehicle owners with further information, including advice that passengers do not travel in the rear seats. They're also offering the use of alternative vehicles while the safety belt issue is being investigated.

If you get any questions from customers, tell them to contact Suzuki directly:
